PERSONAL STORIES OF INDIVIDUALS

Using examples from real life situations, for example, the story of a retired couple, an unemployed man, a young female migrant, a young dropout and a father or a retired traveller, the viewer gets a precise insight into the problems that occur when facing an under-developed key competence, practical responses to the real life needs of individuals and into the educational solutions that individuals have chosen to solve their problems.

MOVIES AS LEARNING TOOLS

Educational movies are tested practical tools. The part where the protagonist solves his problem with dedication to education and learning, leads the viewer to the thought: "I can do it myself as well, I have to do something." Therefore, these emotionally powerful personal stories easily engage the viewer in decisions to take individual actions.

Nejc, a young dropout and a father, an educational movie on the key competence Sense of initiative and entrepreneurship

USEFULNESS OF EDUCATIONAL MOVIES FOR VULNERABLE GROUPS

Movies can be used for different purposes and in different stages of the educational process: for the independent individual learning or as a tool for group work and learning, as warm-up motivation and/or as a summary for repetition.

Movies are especially useful for those adults who have more problems with written texts and therefore more easily accept information through video. The main characteristic of the movies On the Path to a Successful Life is that they involve personal stories of narrators in a such way that the universal/transferable experiences are gradually revealed and easily recognized by the viewer.
